Type Approval & Automotive Component Testing

We can provide testing and type approval according different standards and regulations. We are recognised as Technical Service of the main European Authorities.

Vehicle Spare Parts Certification

The certification process evaluates the material and fitting of the spare part and the quality and robustness of the manufacturers processes for reverse engineering and production. The certification scheme apply only to spare parts without any involvement in safety aspects, neither active nor passive.

The partnership between Thatcham Research and TÜV Rheinland ended December 31, 2017, and TÜV Rheinland took take over all new parts certification operations.
