INTRODUCTION

Dietary supplements are consumed orally; unlike medicines, they are not intended to treat, diagnose or cure diseases, but help improve the dietary value and, in fact, supplement people's diet. These products can be both a combination of vitamins, minerals, plants, amino acids, and a substance to improve nutritional value; they also have a fixed and measurable formulation. With the approval of the 1994 Dietary Supplement Health and Education Act (DSHEA) law in the USA, the conditions for the admission of Dietary Supplements (DS) to the market were facilitated.

In Iran, the Administration of Natural and Dietary Supplement Products affiliated to the Iranian Food and Drug Administration (IFDA¹) (in short referred to as 'Supplementary Administration') is the principal control authority of production, import, and the enforcement of relevant laws and marketing authorization in this area. In addition to the registration of the dietary supplements, the administration monitors natural and traditional products and infant formulas in the market. In 1981, the administration began its activity on herbal products. Eventually, its name was changed to the administration of natural and traditional products and dietary supplements in 2013. According to the food supplement registration regulations, the supplements are only distributed by the companies authorized by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). The supplements are only provided by pharmacies to the customers and without the need for a prescription.

Iranian Dietary Supplementary Manufactures Syndicate (IDSMS) and the Syndicate of Iranian Food Supplements Importers (SIFSI) are two syndicates that have published sales information relative to their own member firms in recent years. Over three decades, the IFDA has been collecting pharmaceutical sales data from pharmaceutical distribution companies to pharmacies, called statistical datasheet. In recent years, the IFDA has been collecting sales data on DS, too.

³ The Persian year usually begins within a day of 21 March of the Gregorian calendar and ends within 20 March of the next Gregorian year. Thus, 1396 (21/03/2017-20/30/2019), 1397 (21/03/2018-20/03/2019), 1398 (21/03/2019-20/03/2020) and finally 1399 (21/03/2020-20/03/2021)

VARIETY OF DSs PRODUCTION IN IRAN

According to the FDA datasheet, more than 1380 different DSs (with respect to a separate dosage form, the manufacturer, and the infant formulas) are observed in the Iranian market. SOME IMPORTANT TIPS ABOUT OBTAINING IRC

According to IFDA's rules and regulations:

- It is possible to register a product and obtain IRC for the same product with several commercial brands.
- Since Persian year 1398 (21/03/2019-20/03/2020), Iran has imposed an import ban on food & dietary supplements from The United States of America.
- Any foreign company is only allowed to introduce just one Iranian company as the exclusive representative of its products in the Islamic Republic of Iran with an exclusive contract of at least five years of validity.
- Products from which there are at least three Iranian producer, are forbidden to import in Iran.
- All DS products designated to be exported in Iran should have Farsi labelling directly on packaging and should not have the flag of country of origin on them.
